Impeller meters in energy management

Btu meters provide an excellent means to monitor energy consumption in multiple facilities supplied by a central plant. Energy consumption can easily be determined to assist owners in recovering costs from tenants when apartments are being serviced by a central boiler or chiller.

Multiple Btu meters can be mounted as illustrated below to monitor heating or cooling loops for multiple apartments in a residential building, multiple laboratories in a central facility, or multiple sections of large industrial processes.